

Ilias G. Spyridonidis

He was born on April 10th 1979. Initially, he has studied Environmental Cartography at the Aegean University (2002) and Italian Language and Literature at Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. He has been awarded a master's degree in Geopolitics by La Sapienza University of Rome (2004). He worked as a geocultural analyst in IsIAO institute of Rome. He has been awarded a doctorate in Translation Studies at Aristotle University of Thessaloniki (2012) and then a doctorate in Italian Studies at Tor Vergata University of Rome specialised in geocultural relations and influences via translation. In 2017 he concluded a post doc research in History of Italian Literature in Western Macedonia libraries in Greece. He is member of the Società Dante Alighieri council from 2008, of ARGOS geopolitics observatory from 2003, of the Society of Western Macedonia Studies, director of the Italian Literature Observatory in Greece, responsible of the PLIDA examination center in Ioannina. Currently, he works as a postdoctoral researcher and as a lecturer at the department of Italian Language and Literature at Aristotle University of Thessaloniki.